"Somebody's Got to Leave"
(From the New York Tribune)
It is stated by a number of newspapers that some philosopher of African descent in that rather broad locality known as "down South," recently expressed his view of the situation as follows: "De darkies is gettin' dissatisfied. De fact is we're beginnin to think dere is too many kinds ob people here. Dere is de whiter an' de blacks an' de Yankees. Dat's too many to get along well, an' somebody's got to leave." The views of this ethnological freedman, we perceive, are regarded as exceedingly novel, and somewhat ridiculous; but, being the lingo in which they are expressed, they seem to us to be precisely similar to the avowal and tenaciously defended opinion of several light colored sages who profess to have mastered all the greatest questions of social science, and to have arrived at precisely the colored man's conclusion. Years ago the project of colonization was started upon exactly the theory that "somebody" was black. Then, after the termination of the rebellion, a great number of whites being in a dissatisfied and unsettled frame of mind, declared that they must leave and go to Brazil or Mexico, or some other far distant and alien shore. It does not appear to us to be at all extraordinary when so many Caucasians are declaring that they cannot live with "niggers," that here and there an individual African should be found proclaiming that he cannot possibly live with Caucasians. Now, unless a remedy can be found for the discontent and dissension which alone can account for this passion for leaving, it is pretty clear that, sooner or later, somebody must emigrate. Shall it be the blacks or the whites? Shall it be the majority or the minority? Shall it be the "oppressed or the oppressors"? Shall it be the workers or the loafers? Shall it be the producers or the non producers? Which can the South, if it would recall its ancient prosperity, spare best, the tillers of the soil, the cultivators of cotton, rice, corn, sugar, and tobacco, or the men who hang about taverns, who consider labor in smoking, drinking, horseracing, and the discussion of politics? We will suppose, by way of illustration, something which is really impossible, i. e., that all the blacks in the Southern States have "left," and that only the white population remains. Who, then, will do the work? It may be answered that there will then be an influx of white laborers. But what has been gained unless the change has made labor respectable, or more accurately speaking, genteel? You will merely have substituted white pariahs for black pariahs; the old original blue blood will be quite as lazy, greedy and unproductive, quite as censorious and domineering as ever so that, in a few years, you will have a repetition of the cry that "somebody must leave." Nothing will satisfy these pauperised aristocrats except a restoration of the old and unnatural relations, by the virtue, or, rather by the vice of which the non-producer appropriates the worker's wages. That is what they need, and that is precisely what, through no possible concession or change can they have in the new and regenerated South. The being the fact, the sooner they leave the better for their respective localities, and the worse for the lands toward which they may turn their faces.

That when we mainly want in reconstructing Southern society is time and patience. It is an absurdity surpassing the absurdity of childhood to expect a country scarred and desolated by civil war and affected by great social changes, to blossom instantly like the rose, and to advance in a moment to the height of prosperity. Most of the trouble at the South, it is evident, is created by a class small in numbers, and which must, in the nature of things rapidly disappear partly because it has lost and never can recover its old artificial position and partly because it is cut off from the possibility of recuperation by its own faults habits, and vices. We do not expect men of this debased character ever to consider the black as anything but a nuisance, and, in turn, the blacks will necessarily regard the thriftless and haughty whites as their natural enemies. But all this is of to day. All this is the result of a struggle for life or death between a doomed aristocracy and a democracy just rising to a sense of its natural rights. There will be no trouble when equity has become familiar, and general justice between man has made toil sweet and labor pleasant and honorable.

New Phases of the Eruption of Mount Vesuvius

The following interesting letter from Mr. G. Grove, dated Naples, April 4th, appears in the London Times:

For some days past Vesuvius has been diminishing in activity, and during the earlier days of this week hardly a sign of fire has been visible from Naples. Yesterday afternoon, however, the crater made a very satisfactory demonstration, which it was my good fortune to see quite close. We had heard several explosions as we came up the mountain, and had seen an occasional shower of sparks thrown up above the little crater, and these gradually increased until we had taken our stand.

Then for more than two hours the hill above us continued to shoot forth an almost constant succession of explosions of brilliant burning stones. I hardly like to use the comparison, but I do not think I can give better idea of it than by saying each explosion was like a vast grandiose of rockets, only that there was more speed about it, and more variety, owing to the different sizes of the stones shot out, and that there was more intense light at the first outburst than in the case of the rockets. Flame, there certainly was none, this we observed carefully, though the trails of the shooting stones and the illuminated vapor might almost excuse the word.

The noise of the discharges was not a bang, it was a pervading sound, almost resembling waves on a beach and wind blowing through shrouds. It varied in intensity, but was nearly continuous, and of a character mentioned. The mountain trembled perceptibly enough during the whole of our stay, though not nearly so strong as it did during my Wednesday visit, when there was certainly any actual explosion. It is impossible for me to call state exactly but I judge there was from 1,000 to 1,500 stones in each great discharge, and there often were as many as eight or ten discharges in a minute. The majority of the stones were small—the largest, say as large as two bricks and to end. The large ones mostly fell back into the crater, but the small ones, being thrown higher and more acted on by the wind, fell in immense numbers on the leeward slope of the small crater on the same side of the great one beyond. To my mind this was a spectacle hardly less striking than the discharges themselves at any rate it was quite new to me.

I have often heard it said that the cone becomes "red hot" under such discharges, but this is not an accurate description of what I saw. "Red" is not the word, but "golden," and the cone was not covered even by these copious showers. The sight was far more beautiful than if it had been so. The crowd of golden spots on the dead black surface, the small ones generally resting where they fell while the large ones rolled through them down the slope and the constant change as shower after shower descended, made a variegated and beautiful spectacle, such as was of itself alone, worth the ascent. It formed a wonderful pedestal to the explosions which surmounted it, and which were naturally the great attraction.

I could not calculate the height to which some of the small stones were thrown, but it was very great. There was generally one which went far higher than all the rest, and pierced upwards towards the moon, who looked calmly down, mocking such vain attempts to reach her. The larger pieces were, with rare exceptions, not thrown so high, indeed, many of them only just appeared over the rim of the cone, above which they came floating leisurely up to show their brilliant forms and intense white light for a second, and then subsided again into the abyss.

The inference was inevitable that there were many still larger blocks which were not thrown high enough for us to see at all. At 9 o'clock we turned to come down, and at certain things occurred but the ordinary incidents of the very disagreeable descent of the cinder covered path. Long before the lights of the city appeared twinkling [illegible] the discharges diminished in frequency and fury, and when the carriage turned into the village and the moon came into view a very large turret from the summit alone remained to tell what we had been seeing.

The London Times has grown weary of the word "awfully."

THE ESSENDON AND TRUMBULL DEFENCE.
The correspondent of the New York Tribune gives this interesting sketch of the speeches of Messrs Trumbull and Fessenden in the Senate Monday and some gossip concerning them.

Lyman Trumbull of Illinois then took the floor and for fifteen minutes he denounced the whole trial. "It would not," he said, "stand a moment in any district court in the country," and thus Mr. Trumbull discharged his duty on behalf of Illinois. But a few weeks ago, he was paid $5,000 for arguing the constitutionality of the reconstruction laws in the McArdle case before the supreme court. It puzzles us to right what the question is for deciding the President on the impeachment record. Here as well as in any other places it may be mentioned that the Illinois delegation in Congress held an informal meeting last night and after a consideration of Mr. Trumbull's action to-day, concluded that of Lyman's he is the prince, that more than all else he helped in the defeat of the measure so far, and that, if his term were to expire on the 4th of next March, and not five years thence, he would take a far different view of the articles of impeachment. William Pitt Fessenden followed. He too, ranged himself with the upholders of the President. Why did he do so? Did his defence for the position of president pro tem of the Senate when Mr. Lincoln was killed and Andrew Johnson quit the Senate for the White House, have anything to do with it? A number of republicans to-night say we are striving to accomplish for the opinion which the leading mind of the Senate reached on the articles of impeachment. William Pitt Fessenden, be it known to Maine gave his opinion to Andrew Johnson on the subject before he gave it to the Senate, and Andrew Johnson gave the information to the correspondent of a democratic journal in New York in the columns of which it may be found this morning. These men may be honest and they may be following their convictions but it looks as though money had been used. There is no doubt but that 100 men in Washington have been under pay since the trial began on purpose to try down impeachment and bet against conviction. This has been done in several ways. Weak-kneed republicans have been hired to look glum, and talk mysteriously that impeachment was dead [illegible] of course with great appearances of sorrow. Every means have been employed to make public opinion in favor of the president. The result is that the party to-night is demoralized and that only the strongest and most individual men in the Senate have the courage to stand bolds to their guns. I feel plainly that Trumbull is the bottom of this whole trouble. I said to night to a prominent member from Illinois that the state ought to be impeached. He said he did vote for that although the state itself would be sorry enough for the course of Trumbull. He believed that the state would buy the pistol with which Senator Lane of Kansas shot himself and give it to him (Trumbull) upon his first appearance in the state.

A DEMOCRATIC SENSATION NIPPED IN THE BUD.
The Atlas disposes of a sensation story that is now going the rounds of the Democratic press as follows:

Some of the violent partisan newspapers of the Democratic faith are publishing a soul harrowing story from a Mississippi paper of a beautiful girl, a daughter of Gen. Mower, aged sixteen having been brutally outraged by a negro soldier at Ship Island. The finale of the drama is effectively hinted at but not fully revealed, and is to the effect that the negro was tried and condemned to death by Court-martial, but Gen. Mower interfered and suspended the sentence, and the culprit was privately murdered, his body sewed up in a sack and thrown into the gulf. The admirable manner in which the narrator contrives to implicate General Mower as well as the negro is fiendishly equalled by the ingenuity with which the crime of enlisting negro soldiers and holding such political opinions as the General is known to entertain is moralized upon. The story and its moral however, suffer considerably from the fact that General Mower has a thirty-two years old, never was married and never had a daughter.

THE SUN'S DISTANCE. School books say that the sun is distant ninety-five millions of miles from the earth but the researches of astronomers aided by improved instruments and methods of observation, throw considerable doubt on this belief. The German astronomer Hansen taking a pendulum as the means of motion as a guide makes the distance 91,700,000 miles. Some of the Greenwich Observatory by using other instruments to measure the same [illegible] makes it 92,000,000 miles. Winnecke and Stone by observations upon Mars obtained respectively 91,830,000 and 91,840,000 miles. Estimates founded on a comparison of the velocity of light as determined by the experiment of Foucault and Fizeau, gave 91,500,000 miles. Leverrier's method founded on the peculiarity of the earth's motion, gives 91,000,000 miles. The new estimate of Mr. Newcombe, founded on observations of Mars in 1862, gives 92,400,000 miles. The mean of these results is 91,727,000.

The New York Citizen says of Commodore Vanderbilt: Pennies to the tenth of a cent when the pockets or bellies of his poor employees are to be punched arrogantly, cunning and exacting when the public purse is to be [illegible] tribute for his private benefit, utterly reckless of any human comfort or human life that is not his own or in the possession of his family or [illegible] we here enter a protest on behalf of the people against any action tending to endow this bold old Money-Maloch with any further power over the lives and liberties, the trade and purses of the Empire State.

The Oregon Election

The opponents of Grant in this State assume that the result of our election indicates a certain defeat of the Union Republican party throughout the country this fall. It is perhaps but natural that they should talk in this wise and endeavor to magnify the importance of the little victory they have won in Oregon. But all candid people will admit that the election in this State is no test of the result elsewhere. There are reasons for this which are perfectly obvious, and which our friends in other States, as well as here, ought to be fully acquainted with.

At the two parties were evenly balanced at our last election, and our opponents had been increasing in numbers for some time in more rapid proportion than ourselves, (owing to the [illegible] and surroundings of the State and to the fact that large numbers of rebel refugees had for some time been drifting in this direction) it would have been surprising if the Union party had been able to fully maintain its ground. For the last four years immigration has been steadily flocking into Oregon from the so-called border States of the West, and from the Territories adjacent thereto on the east and north. This population has been, in large part, composed of those whom the civil commotions forced to leave their places of residence. They were both rebel or rebel sympathizers, and of course all of them thoroughgoing "Democrats." Those who were not active rebels were of the [illegible] settled class who find it irksome to live in communities, and who naturally vote the Democratic ticket. The tendency of this class of population has been for several years in this direction, and the Democratic vote shows that they have come in in large numbers during the last two years. The returns show that the Union vote throughout the State is [illegible] large as it was in the last election. There is a reduction in some counties, but a proportionate gain in others. No doubt a change might be found here and there who have changed from the Union to the Democratic side during the past two years, but the number is very inconsiderable. They will not count for a fraction to account for the [illegible] result. There have also been some [illegible] in our favor,—probably fully as many as there have been against us. But the latter has not depended to any considerable extent, on their averages. The returns show [illegible] vote in the State, and prove conclusively that this increase has been in favor of the Democratic party. This is the reason why the Democratic vote has obtained upwards of 1,000 majority in this election.

[illegible] have often occasion to show that we never had anything like the [illegible] in Oregon which the elections of 1862 and 1864 indicated. On those occasions the large Union majorities were due to the fact that the Democrats did not come out to vote. Gov. Gibbs, in 1862, received less than [illegible] number of votes which had been cast in the Presidential election of 1860; while he was elected by over 3,000 majority. [illegible] the war, the Copperheads who were [illegible] to have been coming out. Men [illegible] year who had not voted since 1860. At any time since 1862 the Democratic party in this State would have been able to press the Union party very hard, simply by setting to [illegible] coming out in full force at [illegible] election. But we would have been able to [illegible] our ground had it not been for the [illegible] tions to the Democratic vote [illegible] described.

This election, therefore, is no indication of [illegible] there. Most of the other [illegible] have little or none of this roving, unsettled population. The people who participated in the great war are as firm and determined as ever to maintain their principles and work out the results they have been striving for and fighting for. No person of intelligence and candor will mistake the result of this election for an indication that the Union party will meet with a national defeat. We [illegible] a vote in this State as we had two years ago; and the Democratic triumph is due to the increased vote which that party has received from the classes who have been drifting in this direction for several years. They have been gaining on us in this way since 1864, reducing our majority in [illegible] from, and this time they have ontstripped us. Let none of our friends be deceived by this, or fall into a belief or fear that a [illegible] triumph in Oregon under these circumstances portends the defeat of GRANT and COLFAX.

"The Democracy."

The New York Journal of Commerce, a leading Democratic paper, in talking about the [illegible] which its party ought to make, says:

> No platform will invite the accession of men [illegible] among the subscribers to [illegible], unless it declares for a payment of the National debt in coin and for giving suffrage to the [illegible] dumb, under restrictions based upon qualification; or either, or both property and education.

This is work as to suffrage is coming up to the standard of the South Carolina Democracy. The New York Citizen, another prominent Democratic journal of the "war" stripe, says of Pendleton:

> He is an utter Copperhead and false hearted Rebel-lover, whose prudence kept him from being a traitor.

This is plain truth to come from a Democratic source. There are a great many Pendletons abroad.

A Very Weak Falsifier.

The Albany Democrat has the meanness to publish the following:

> "A VERY SHARP FINANCIER.
> "It is on a rely reported that Logan bet $5,000 through a friend, that he (Logan) would be beaten. Of course he has won. We call this sharp financiering. Having traveled all over the State, he was well convinced that he would be badly [illegible]. If he had been victorious he could afford to lose the money. He incurred but little risk, however, in the transaction."

No doubt this story is an invention of the Democrat's Nobody but a Copperhead editor of the kind employed in Oregon would have originated it. Mr. Logan never bet a dollar on the result of the election or talked of making a bet upon it. The insinuation that he would bet against the money of his own friends and pocket it after he had won, is too ineffably mean to come from any other source than an imported Copperhead editor.

The Oregon and Idaho Telegraph.

The Oregon Steam Navigation Company have, at their own expense, constructed a telegraph line from Portland to the Dalles, and will immediately complete it to Celilo. It is proposed to extend this line by way of Umatilla and Walla Walla to Boise City, and thence to form a connection with the Montana line. This is a project which should commend itself to the business men of Portland, Dalles, Umatilla, and other towns interested in having the line built. A movement is on foot in the towns above to aid the enterprise, with what success we are not precisely informed. The proprietors of the line from this place to Celilo propose, as we understand, the organization of a company to complete the work. They will turn in as stock, the portion already built, and assist in completing the line. The work is one which is greatly needed, and which, if completed, would be highly useful and advantageous to this whole section of country. Business men might do well to take stock in the enterprise, and receive their money back in telegraphing. They have business relations with the upper country, and a telegraph would be both a convenience and a source of profit to them. An extension of the line from Boise City for a distance of 180 miles would give us communication with Montana, which would be of great advantage in a business point of view to Portland. It is highly desirable that this work should be pushed through. It should not be delayed or suffered to fail.

The Union party of Oregon are defeated, but they don't propose to adopt the Democratic remedy of rebellion, or make fools of themselves by declaring they "never will submit." They mean to go to work with renewed energy, holding continuously to their principles, and endeavoring to make them triumphant in a lawful way. They are a law-abiding party, hold national views, notwithstanding talk of secession and don't kick up rebellions. If beaten at the ballot box, they appeal to the ballot-box for another decision. And when their opponents are beaten at the ballot-box and appeal to arms, the Union party accept the challenge and thrash the rebels "like blazes."

Gray and Wm. H. Odell, Directors. B. J. Pengra, was chosen President; J. R. Bayley, Vice President; J. B. Underwood, Secretary; A. S. Patterson, Treasurer; Wm. P. Pengra, Superintendent.

The Eugene Journal learns that a man was found in the road dead in Lookingglass prairie lately. He had been driving an ox team and had, it seems, fell from the wagon and been run over. A severe accident also occurred near Oakland. A Mrs. Neely was riding on horse-back over the bridge at the Calapooia behind a wagon when the team became frightened and ran backwards, crowding the horse and rider off the bridge into the bed of the stream, a distance of 15 or 20 feet, on a pile of drift and logs, badly if not fatally injuring the lady.

General Smith, the present State Treasurer of Illinois, was considered certain to be renominated. In the State Convention it was not until the call had proceeded down a fourth of the list of counties that any dangerous opposition was encountered. At that stage the chairman of a delegation, rising to vote for his county, declared: "I cast the five votes of my county for the gallant Colonel Bates, the starved prisoner of Andersonville." The appeal to the Convention, contained in these few words, was irresistable. He was nominated on the first call.—Chicago Post.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JUNE 7.

UTICA, June 5.—A terrible storm of wind and rain passed over this region on Saturday. It blew down a brick chimney 80 feet high, of the Eagle Cotton Factory. The chimney fell upon the roof of the machine shop, crushing it, instantly killing one man and severely wounding four others.

Indian Matters.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says: An other Indian land treaty will come to light on Wednesday. The Osage Nation was induced by promises and misrepresentations on the part of the Commissioner which was headed by Indian Commissioner Taylor, to sell eight million acres of land on their reservation for twenty cents an acre, payable in fifteen years, to a private party, while numerous better bids were made for the same by other parties.

Central America.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Spanish dates to June 4th have been received.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.—Yesterday afternoon, after the close of the ceremonies at Lone Mountain Cemetry, an elderly man, named Oliver Wyman, attempted to get upon the front platform of one of the Central Company's cars. The platform was densely crowded, and being knocked off fell under the wheels, which passed over his head and neck, crushing him in a horrible manner and caused instant death. The conductor, Charles O. Mayhew, was arrested and held to bail in the sum of $3,000. He will undoubtedly be acquitted of blame by the Coroner's jury.

A fire occurred this morning in the dry good store of J. Myers & Co., Third street. Loss $1,000. Insured to the amount of $15,000. A frame building on Folsom, between Third and Fourth, belonging to Sheriff Davis, was also burned to-day. Loss, $4,000.

A Chase Party.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The city has been alive for several days with reports concerning the movements for the formation of a new party, with the Chief Justice at its head. The course of Fessenden, Trumbull and Henderson has been generally referred to that movement, as in fact controlled by the shape they expected it to take. It can now be stated that none of those Republican papers which have taken the position that in the minds of several prominent Senators, Wade stood directly in the way of impeachment, have overestimated that difficulty, and his prominence in connection with the future of the party has united several of those who do not like him in the new party movement.

So far as known, the first positive declaration of the Chief Justice in the matter was made on Thursday of last week, to a committee from a Democratic organization in Philadelphia. The committee consisted of John Welsh, last Democratic candidate against Judge Kelley, and Assessor Frazier, a former Republican, who went into the Philadelphia Convention, subsequently swung around the circle with Johnson, and has since acted with the Democrats. They arrived in the city Wednesday, and the next day obtained an interview with Mr. Chase, when Frazier said:

THE NOMINATION OFFERED.

"Mr. Chief Justice, we have called upon you as members of the Citizens' Conservative Association of Pennsylvania, of which ex Governor Johnston is President, for the purpose of consulting you in reference to the use of your name as the people's Conservative candidate for the Presidency. We believe, sir, that the mass of the American people are now looking to you as the man who is to lead us out of the great difficulties we are now in. The American people are now instinctively turning to you that you may lead them to peace and national prosperity. We believe, Mr. Chief Justice, that, with you as the standard bearer of all the people now in opposition to the radical by revolutionary measures of the Republican party, we can sweep the country from ocean to ocean. We hope, sir, you will give this matter your favorable consideration, and will soon come to see that you can serve your country much more efficiently as President of the United States than in the office you now fill with so much ability."

THE REPLY OF CHASE.

To this the Chief Justice replied substantially as follows:

"Gentlemen, I am personally gratified to meet you and make your acquaintance; for am I less gratified for the kind feelings you express for me, but I must frankly say to you my position as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court forbids my entering into politics, and am thus debarred, very properly so, from mingling in the politics of the day. But, Chief Justice as I am, I feel I am the servant of the people, and should they call me to preside for four years over the destiny of our country, I doubtless would feel it my duty to comply. Understand me, I am no candidate for the office—an office that at best is anything but agreeable, and one that at present is especially vexatious and annoying."

To this the Committee replied:

THE REJOINDER.

"But, Mr. Chief Justice, although you are not a candidate for the Presidency, and are, doubtless, averse to assuming so great a responsibility, yet, sir, if the people turn to you, as they certainly will, as their deliverer, do you not feel that it would be your duty to help them? What we now want is peace and prosperity; a complete and permanent reconstruction of the South; but, until we have the South restored, we have no peace; until we have accomplished a complete restoration of the States of the South, the business interests of the country will continue disorganized, and financial ruin will sooner or later be our doom.

CHASE'S SECOND SPEECH.

The Chief Justice replied briefly that he was in the hands of the people. Although not deserting the Presidency, yet, if the people called him to serve them in a higher and more arduous sphere, he would doubtless comply. He felt that perhaps no man more deeply deplored the condition of the country, and if there was anything he could do to restore confidence, to bring peace with all its blessings, and calm the passions of the people, that he would freely do it.

FURTHER PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMITTEE.

The committee, after an hour's interview, left, expressing themselves as very highly pleased. They soon after called upon Senators Doolittle, Dixon, Norton and others, and consulted upon taking immediate steps to consolidate the conservative elements of the country upon the Chief Justice for the Presidency.

H. W. Beecher says

In the first years of our lives we think that the world is a great deal too small for us, and that we could carry it on our shoulders. In middle life we think it full large enough, and in old age that it is much too large, and are content to mount it and let it carry us along.

In all stages of our lives we frequently need something to invigorate the system

NEW JERSEY.—The Irish people are about equally divided upon the issues and talks of speech. There is, indeed, a prevalent idea in existence, that whoever is a democrat is a drunkard—opposition to which, a politician of a rival party is sure to come out. But that there are others of the people who perpetrate habits scientifically akin to this drinking custom—and that, too, in a degree which is a source of literary notice. An American doctrine of the responsibilities of parents, gravely said: Parents, it may have children, or if you have not, your daughters may. It was a Dutchman who said a pig had no very much to expect a shoat [illegible]. It was a British magistrate who, being told by a vagabond that he was not married, said: "It's a good thing for your wife." A Western editor once wrote: "A correspondent asks whether to-day, the 1st of April, is correct. In answer, we find that the first instance occurred that we can remember of the Christian era." An answer, we find that was a New Hampshire Yankee who made an apparent bull in half of a speech by which his father was a drunkard and whose mother was a [illegible]. It was a Scotchman who said that he had always noticed that when he lived through the month of May he lived through the year. Such was an Englishman who gravely remarked at a wedding. I have noticed that more women have died this year than men. ... It was an excessively polite Frenchman who took slight liquor; but his way down was by a rather serious accident, for, getting drunk, he brought it back, with thanks, leaving himself at the top of the steps in the dark as at first. ... It was an American of African descent who jostled over a ball room floor. "We can't even be admitted unless he comes himself." Such specimens might be multiplied indefinitely, but these sufficiently prove that both of speech do not belong exclusively to the Emerald Islanders.

CIRCUIT COURT—CURRY, JUDGE.—The June term of the Circuit Court for Multnomah county, was opened yesterday morning, Judge Upton presiding. The following were the proceedings for the day:

W. S. Ballard, Jacob Wheeler, D. F. Harrington, John Knox, Jacob Cline, Patrick Hogan and Frank Perry were empaneled and sworn as grand jurors, and W. S. Ballard was appointed foreman.

J. C. Kingsley and F. A. Clark were appointed bailiffs, and C. B. Upton clerk of the court, for the term.

Warden was ordered to issue a venire for thirteen jurors to fill up panel of trial jurors.

The following, G. V. Mackie, James D. Fay, Josiah Deane, W. Beardsley, B. Goldsmith and Wm. Fraser jurors summoned for the term, to-wit: T. A. Butler, H. F. Black, John H. Couch, Felix Gibbons, W. Grant and Oscar Kilborn, jurors summoned failed to appear.

John H. Kilgore vs. Mary J. Kilgore; default of defendant entered, and cause referred to W. S. Caldwell, Esq., to take proofs.

Philip J. Jones vs. steamer John L. Stephens; costs paid and action dismissed.

W. W. Thayer, Esq., admitted to practice as an attorney and counsellor at law, on motion of J. M. Read, Esq.

Lazarus Beltman vs. James and Caroline Breyman; final decree for plaintiff for $7,640, U. S. gold coin, and decree of foreclosure of mortgage and sale of lots 3 and 4 in block 12, and west 25 feet and south half of lot 5 in block 3, in the city of Portland, Oregon.

THE WEATHER AND THE PICNIC.—It is clear that we can have no settled weather till the picnic season is over. The picnics ought, all of them, to have been held early in May, so that June might have come in and gone along quietly with its usual odiousness and smashing, strawberries and cream, and other loathsome etceteras. We do not impute blame to the managers of the picnics—the weather flouted out their plans in May and, with the best intentions, they put off their festive days—but the postponements have played the Old Nick with the June picnic. It is an almost invariable rule that during the picnic season, the campmeeting season, or the 4th of July, and other jubilee days, the weather considers it its self bound to be watery. The picnic people probably had no idea, too of ruining the first half of June but they have done it, to our grief, and now in a week or two, the campmeetings are coming on to spoil the last half of June and the first half of July. Really, we feel that we are badly used by these unfortunate conjunctions. If we let on that we intend to have picnics and all holidays in December, so that the weather can have no excuse for making a fool of itself during what ought to be the dry season.

MCGINLEY'S MINSTRELS.—A very good audience was out last evening at the second appearance of McGinley's [illegible] and Variety troupe. We believe that there were a few present who did not have many a hearty laugh at the quips and jokes and eccentricities of McGinley and Bobby, who did not applaud the performances of Bobby and Miss Sarah McGinley. Miss Sarah was frequently encored after giving one of her quaint Irish songs, or fancy dances, and several beautiful bouquets were thrown to her upon the stage. Master Bobby is an excellent dancer and general performer for a lad of his years. He, too, was several times called in front as an encore. Taking it as a first rate, though skeleton troupe, the disadvantage of being sick. How he gets through is a wonder. Mr. McGinley is a good performer, and he never fails to bring down the house when he sings. The whole troupe will appear again to-night, with a new programme. They will play at Oregon City probably, Wednesday evening.

STEAMER FOR PORTLAND.—The following is the list of passengers per steamship John L. Stephens which left San Francisco on Saturday, the 6th, for Portland: S Blumauer, wife and daughter, J B Harrower, E Van Dusenlos, O H Abbey, Miss M E Thompson, Miss C L Thompson, A L Rumn and 8 children, J Bragg and wife, [illegible] Carter, A W Michels, C Rosenbaum, J B Foster, Chas Wm Kohl, R H Thompson, W S Thompson, H [illegible] E Durbrow, John Cadby, W A Faulkenau and child, Mrs Eddy and wife, Miss Pattee, Mrs E D Baker, Baker, Mrs Pattee, Mrs E O Anderson, Major Perry, L Beck, J Stillman Lewis, W P Eaton, wife and child, C O [illegible] and wife, Mrs Olive Dellart, Mrs L P W Quimby and child, Mrs Chauman and 3 children, E Abbuson, Mrs J A Anderson and child, M Y B Gardiner and wife, Mrs J A Chaddowner and son, C Rosenheim, E [illegible], Mrs Loschmidter, Mrs J Horn and infant, and 63 in the steerage.

A MAN BECOMES HIS OWN GRANDFATHER.—In this [illegible] a white man is very uncertain; he may be himself, or may be somebody else, and he is liable to unconsciously undergo transformations as regards his relations with other people. The following solution of a [illegible] shows what fantastic freaks may be played with a [illegible] by a reckless application of the marriage [illegible]. Three [illegible] married—widow and daughter, and will [illegible]. The widower's son marries the widow's daughter, whereupon [illegible] becomes his father-in-law. The son's daughter [illegible] becomes his mother. The mother's mother [illegible] becomes his grandmother. His grandmother [illegible] (which is himself) must of course be his grandfather.

THE ASSIZES.—The following is a list of attorneys in attendance at the opening of the June term of the Circuit Court, yesterday: Chas. Parrish, [illegible] A Smith, J N Dolph, John Catlin, O. P. [illegible] H. W. E. Bybee, D. Freidenrich, W. Lair Hill, J. H. Reed, C. A. Dolph, W. W. Page, C. W. Fachtleiter, R.D. Shattuck, D. Logan, F. A. Magnum, A. M. Wait, T. A. Dooley, J. C. Work, J. F. McCoy, — Thayer, M. F. Mallory, Lansing Stout, Eugene Semple, J. C. Champoeg, W. W. Chapman, R. W. Hedgkinson, J. W. Stevens, Wm. Strong and R. Ellsworth. The above named [illegible] Mr. Ellsworth, belong to the Portland [illegible].

THE CONVENIENCE OF THE POSTAL SERVICE.—Owing to the [illegible] weather of the past few days, with every [illegible] of the [illegible] continuance of the same, the [illegible] arrangements are reluctantly forced to announce the postponement of the Postal picnic. This is especially aggravating as the pleasant weather of the latter part of last week led everybody to suppose that the [illegible] of sunshine and picnics before the fall rains set in. The time for holding the picnic has not yet been [illegible], however, due notice will be given.

THE RAILROAD SUIT.—Go Saturday, at Salem, Judge Boise heard in favor of a motion for a continuance of the suit of the railroad companies, East side and West side, [illegible] now pending before Judge Upton, involving [illegible] shall be decided. These railroad suits [illegible] not ruin the prospects of both companies [illegible] continued. Neither can expect to obtain any [illegible] backing while the uncertainties of the [illegible] hang over them. Who wants to buy what may be, in a little while, a dead cock in the pit?

WAY-BILL LETTERS.—The following letters are retained for prepayment of postage: James Welch Salem Mass; [illegible] Jaines: E Anderson, Victoria; Charles [illegible], Oregon, 33 Nov. D L Spaulding, Vancouver; [illegible], Oregon, Sloqually, W. T.; E M. Riley, San [illegible], Milton Station, Salem, Mrs. C. McEwan, [illegible] Mrs. A. W. Parke, San Francisco, Stillson, [illegible] & Co. New York; Lue La Mouter, Dayton, [illegible] R. H. Elliott, Pittsfield, N. H.; D. C. Cronin, New York City.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The bark Occident will sail from this morning for Springville, where she will take a portion of her cargo. The following is a list of her passengers, taken from Oswego and Portland: 200 tons pig iron, 30 bundles, 64 bbls and 1 keg salmon, 8 cases shooks in the [illegible], 61 chests bacon, 346 sacks oats, 130 bbl [illegible] apples, 2 gunnies flour, 1 case marble slabs. She will take at Springville 100 tons oats, from St. Helens, 10,000 shooks, and from Rainier, 200,000 feet of lumber.

THE LAST FUND.—In the late excitements of the election the [illegible] fund for Wm Atkins seems to have been [illegible] for the time. The Bulletin of last evening acknowledges the receipt of $17 from De Ostrander, of Rainier, $8, to be added to the fund. It was contributed by the people of Cowlitz county, W. T. This leaves us a handy remainder. Will not some one person take the matter in hand, and raise the needed balance without further [illegible].

THE BIG STEAMER.—The big Brewster was towed down the river yesterday morning by the steamer Couch. The [illegible] and down from Oswego to this city yesterday. She goes to Springville this week and thence to Rainier to complete her cargo. The advices on board of the arrival at San Francisco of the barks Rainier Almatia and Melancthon.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.—The following were the arrivals yesterday: Per steamer Alert, 2,940 qr sacks flour, 130 sacks oats, 100 sacks feed, 61 cases hats, 2 bales woolen goods, 5 sacks fruit, 12 packages sundries, 1 horse. The [illegible] Antelope arrived yesterday morning from Portland with [illegible] feet lumber.

THE HORSE RACE.—We learn that a race has been made between the Jim Buck mare, Montrose and Asher's mare, "Legal Tender," to be run over the Lone course on the 31 July, single dash of a mile for $400 a side. This race will attract a considerable attention.

THE FIRE.—The Washington Guards have our thanks for complimentary tickets to their excursion and picnic on Wednesday.

MISTAKE.—In our telegraphic dispatch to the Dalles published last evening, the type made a serious error. It stated that the water in the Columbia and Snake rivers was [illegible]. It should have read falling.—Returns by telegraph.

THE RACE.—The race for the Unionville purse last Saturday between Pat Hall's [illegible] and J. [illegible]'s Mary [illegible], half mile dash for a $200 a side—was won by the former by [illegible] distance.

THE NEXT STEAMER.—The steamer John L. Stephens left San Francisco [illegible] and will arrive here Saturday, and may [illegible] to-night or early tomorrow.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—[illegible] yesterday. The [illegible] Monday [illegible].

Ku-Klux Murder in Louisiana.

From the New Orleans Picayune, May 11.

We are reliably informed that Hon. W. R. Meadows, of Claiborne Parish, was killed a few evenings since near his own place, by disguised men who claimed to belong to the Ku Klux Klan. He left his house for the purpose of feeding his stock, was shot, and died immediately. Mr. Meadows had been a soldier in the United States Army, and recently represented his parish in the Constitutional Convention. He was a quite intelligent, quiet peaceable gentleman, but had excited the enmity of the rabble of his neighborhood by being active in favor of the reinstatement of the negro in the constitution.

We are also ruthlessly informed that Captain Twitchell, of Bienville Parish, started to go on horseback to [illegible]. As he did not return at the expected time, a search was instituted, which resulted in finding a horse and saddle, but nothing was seen or learned of the missing man. Fears are entertained of foul play, as Captain Twitchell's life has been repeatedly threatened. There at all events is with the Constitutional Convention cannot have forgotten a quiet unobtrusive gentleman, with the scar of a terrible wound on one side of his face. That was Captain M. H. Twitchell, from Bienville Parish, who gallantly fought and was terribly wounded in the Union army for that peace and protection which his government has failed to give him.

Lawlessness, violence and murders are increasing in our country parishes, and some remedy must be found, and immediately, or the result will be too horrible to contemplate. Surely it is time the Major General commanding this district awoke to the necessity of prompt and energetic action to preserve the interests of Louisiana and the peace and good order of our people.

Comfort for Johnson such goes back to his old trade in Tennessee. He never took into to mend.

RELIABLE SUMMER HATS.—The Express Hats seem to be more in demand since the sun set in than ever before, also the Negligee and Long Branch Hats of which Meussdorffers have just received a new lot.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all kinds.
The undersigned who has long enjoyed public confidence for the excellent qualities of his Coffee neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his products, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his manufactures, which commands here and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers and every day he sees increasing the number of those who by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can be discovered only after a trial; but only adds to the favorable opinion of its consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Child of Marie Antoinette

The most affecting scene in the history of Marie Antoinette the unfortunate Queen of France one of the earliest victims of the French Revolution is that in which the young Dauphin of France is torn from the arms of his mother and placed under the [illegible]

In Peter Parley's Magazine [illegible] following picture of this subject [illegible] that interesting section in which [illegible] historical account is followed

"Probably all history records no such wanton an aggregation of misery as is summed up in the brief life of the child Dauphin Louis XVII of France

The petted youngest child of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, has first years were passed in such an atmosphere of luxury and love that the privations, misery and degradation he was compelled to endure subsequently were all the more bitter by force of contrast.

Too young really to appreciate with his sister the terrors of the early days of the Revolution his sufferings must be said to have begun even when he was imprisoned with the other members of the royal family in the Temple, for then his mother was to him a loving tenderly, and his father devoted himself to the boy's instruction and moral improvement But the time came when he was ruler of the Convention, he was awakened in the night of the 3d of July 1793 while sleeping, beside his mother and was borne away from those he loved into solitary confinement The cobbler Simon the disciple of Marat was designated as jailor to this high-bred child, upon whom he imposed the most menial servitude and used him in the most brutal manner He sang to him the most bloodthirsty songs, the prisoner was compelled to listen to the most atrocious accusations against his mother, he was peered at, beaten and reviled to a degree which seems almost incredible, and oftentimes his drunken jailor would force the trembling child to drink from his cup and share his intoxication When Simon, however, was dismissed from the Temple, the poor little victim felt as if possible, even harder to bear He was confined in a cell where a ray of sunlight never penetrated, where there was no fire and where the sound of a human voice never reached him He lost all knowledge of the count of time, he knew not even the day from the night. O, unhappy prince! A martyr to [illegible]s, and solitude, and darkness he did not live to see the hand that supplied him with [illegible]. His clothing of which he had no change, hung about him in shreds, [illegible] has long, sleepless nights without [illegible] on a hard pallet, and with exquisite [illegible] breast of cruelty, the jug which contained [illegible] was so heavy that he had scarcely [illegible] to raise it to his parched lips The rats and [illegible] were his only companions in [illegible] son, the door of which [illegible] for six months.

After the [illegible] of Robespierre the child was remembered and visited on the 31st of July, 1794, by several members of the Committee of General Safety. Hardly was the door of the cell, or we should rather say tomb, opened, when the very men who had condemned the father to the scaffold shrank back in horror and affright at the spectacle within The beautiful boy in whose veins flowed the patrician blood of the House of Bourbon and the House of Austria had become a mere shadow, a wretched mass of corruption His face was covered with running sores as with a mask, and his head was alive with vermin Both sight and hearing were gone. They spoke to him, but there was no reply. He murmured only the words 'I want to die!'

He was removed to the room formerly occupied by his father in the Temple was bathed and his tumors dressed by the wife of his new jailor, who, a mother herself, felt some pity for this poor little nine year old victim. All kinds of stratagems were resorted to to obtain more generous food for the child, but in vain. Besides, even with every care and comfort bestowed upon him, Death had set his seal upon him and all would have been of no avail; brutality, and mental and [illegible] agony had done their work He [illegible] the last night of his life alone When awakened next morning by his kind hearted jailor, he took his hand and bore it to his lips. "Good-bye," he said, "I am going, up there," pointing above; the music is very beautiful" And in a kind of ecstacy he passed into another and better world.

He was put into his pine coffin without a shroud, and the lid was fastened down with [illegible] over the last-born of the most august race the world has ever known The [illegible] was at mid-day, and in the presence of a crowd full of sadness and of commiseration. Now that he was gone, the people began to remember the loveliness and grace of the child, as he played in the garden of the Tuileries, or tossed them kisses or flowers as he rode along the streets He was buried in the [illegible] corner of the cemetery of St Marguerite, and as his remains were carried through the Rue Popincourt, full of pity the children [illegible] "It is the Dauphin" and uncovered their heads in token of respect to the poor child who had known more of poverty [illegible] they themselves

SWIMMING TEA.—A plucky old fellow had a son who was a student at one of our New England colleges, and one day thought he would visit the institution He did so spent the day [illegible], and was invited to stop to tea He accepted the invitation, and upon receiving his share of the celestial fluid, reached out and [illegible] a bowl of what he supposed to be [illegible] but which was in reality salt Without [illegible] at he proceeded to liberally [illegible] his tea. Presently he perceived, [illegible] glances toward him, and by the [illegible] ring and suppressed "snickering was wrong, and he rightly supposed it was some act of his and [illegible] his tasting the tea, the "snickering" [illegible] into a "horse laugh," he hadn't [illegible] it as to what the matter was. As [illegible] he noted, the old gent didn't like to be [illegible] of it, especially by a parcel of school boys, so with Spartan resolution, he worried down the abominable compound, washing, no doubt, that those boys could be made to drink a smart [illegible] before going to prayers in the morning. Giving a final gulp, and putting on a face that was intended to make everybody think that he liked his 'dose of salts,' he called for another cup, and upon receiving it, said to the head snickerer Young man, will you be kind enough to pass that bowl of salt The salt was passed, and amid the most breathless silence, he dipped a couple of spoonfuls into his tea, stirred it up, and tasted it with a look of apparent satisfaction. 'Why, Mr —,' said the young man opposite him 'do you drink salt in your tea?' 'Always,' answered the plucky old man with great emphasis, and in his pleasantest manner

A CALIFORNIA BID FOR A WIFE We find the following in the Cleveland Plaindealer

The following letter comes to us all the way from California It is self-explanatory:

YUBA CITY, CALIFORNIA

"Editor Weekly Plain Dealer—Dear Sir some of my kind friends from your city has been sending me the plain dealer for some time past the only Paper I get from the states. I have been in California for some years past, and in good circumstances think it about time to get a wife do not know of any chance to get one only by to advertise for one in your paper I am a rather of a stock man either as I may call it I think there is many young ladies that would like to get married and come to California to live in the land of gold, where milk and honey flow There is plenty of girls hear in California but not one of them is worth [illegible] room for a working man all they think of is fine Dress and running with other men Time after very dull in California at present but will be better when spring opens

Please say to the girls of Ohio that there is a young man in Yuba City sutter County California would like to get a wife with out Coming back to the States for one By correspondence if there is any that wants to let them write to NEWELL HARDING

They have a Democratic newspaper in Sacramento which is well calculated to enlighten the unterrified The other day in speaking of an article in the New York Tribune said Thurlow Weed the editor of that paper and in the same issue of the [illegible] full [illegible] formed his readers that Grant and Colfax would not run well in the East because they both came from States Illinois and Indiana — cost of the Mississippi river!

Girls - A Composition

BY A VERY SMALL BOY

I don't like girls Girls is very different from what boys is Girls don't play much [illegible] and girls don't play hookey I played hookey once and got whipped I for it Girls is nothing to be whipped but it is so much as boys their clothes aint so well suited for it that is the reason, I suppose I never see girls play base ball but they say they do in Boston There are plenty of girls in Boston and big ones too Last year when I was young, the teacher made me set with the girls a time I was naughty I cried Big boys ought to girls better than little boys I went on a sleigh ride one night with my sister Nancy and Frank Sykes We were going up to New Hartford, and when we got up by Peggs tavern Tom asked me if I took in the bottom of the sleigh for his whip and while I was looking he fired off a torpedo I asked him if he had any more torpedoes and he said no But he fired off another when I wasn't looking. Girls don't like to have monkeys them They always say don't If they wasn't for that they would turn their heads the other way, but they never do that I saw Tom kiss Nancy once and I went and told mother Then my mother put me to bed When a girl takes out her handkerchief in the street to wipe her nose the young man who earn their living by standing in front of the Pine Block always wipes their noses at the same time, if they see her Girls get married sometimes but not always Those that don't get married don't want to When they get married they have a wedding cake I like wedding cake but I do not see any fun in getting married especially to a girl.

THE END

A DYING WIFE SELECTS A FUTURE HUSBAND — "Come hasten to the wedding." This is a strange song to sing at a wife's funeral but the festive Teuton in Detroit would have been glad to have done so on Monday, had not all his joy been turned to sorrow by the last will and testament of his deceased wife, who came from the "Ocean of the Sea." This man was worth about $20,000, but he wishing to keep it out of some one's reach put it all in his wife's name She was buried Monday, but left a will in which she gives two hundred dollars to a servant girl who had been very kind to her The balance of the property is left to the children the husband only to have the use of it until the youngest child should be of age provided he either lives or marries the servant girl aforesaid He don't wish to marry the girl but he does wish to marry another, of that at once but wishes to have his property to live on, but knows he must forfeit it if he does so Poor fellow! that funeral on Monday was not so pleasant an affair after all

A THRILLING INCIDENT

In the mission life of Mrs Ingalls, in Burmah, is well told in the "Baptist Messenger" relating how she was sent for to visit one of the Buddhist high priests, who had been nearly killed, and how, while in the most holy place in their temple where none but the priests had ever before been admitted she was permitted unrebuked to use for him the sacred vessels which none but the high priest dare touch and to even overturn and sit on without rising to rest all through the magic influence of the Pain Killer, called by them the "God medicine" even carefully had she used it in curing it on many occasions, that [illegible] the bites of venomous reptiles, &c. This speaks volumes for the Pain Killer. London Times

Rev J F Cobb Missionary at Gay, in Southern India writes "We have found your Pain Killer very highly efficacious among which were cholera, liver complaint, dysentery, the bites of venomous reptiles, &c. This speaks volumes for the Pain Killer. London Times

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern I hereby give notice that all persons called Shipley's Pacific Turbine Water Wheel" is a direct infringement and copy of the James Leffel's American Double Turbine Water Wheel and its manufacture and use is hereby prohibited Any person or persons making using or contracting or vending said Water Wheels will be dealt with according to law and penalties Part with interested will take notice for I shall prosecute all infringements to the utmost extent of the law

That all may know what I mean when I say that my Shipley Pacific Turbine Water Wheel is the first and only one that I claim as my invention I will say that I have the opinion on this subject from one of the most eminent Patent Attorneys in the United States

WASHINGTON D C April 17 1868

MR A MYERS In accordance with your request we have examined the patents of Shipley & Walter Wheels and are clearly of the opinion that they do not infringe the Leffel patents In both Shipley & Wheels he uses the upper and lower buckets which are precisely as Leffel has and in this lies certain infringement The fact that Shipley has applied another series of buckets in addition as those used by Leffel does not relieve him from the consequences of infringement at all He has no right to use those two tiers of buckets whether at one or with a third or any other number of tiers added It is clear infringement Respectfully yours

DODGE & MUNN

I hereby give notice that I will prosecute to arrest infringement on all and each of the makers users buyers or sellers Shipley's Pacific Turbine Water Wheels and will hold them responsible for damages
